The shows were widely acclaimed; Billboard noted Kacey “offered a mix of catharsis and humor” during her performance, while The Minneapolis Star Tribune said she, “burned bright in the emotional, visual tour opener.” After headlining NYC’s iconic Madison Square Garden, Variety raved, “Musgraves was equally at home being vulnerable, silly, wistful and in the mood to party.”

Musgraves’ groundbreaking album Golden Hour, and subsequent Oh, What A World: Tour spanned over two years, including an arena tour with Harry Styles. Kacey has performed at such marquee festivals including Primavera, Coachella, Stagecoach, Fuji Rocks Festival, Global Citizen Festival, Austin City Limits, Outside Lands, Newport Folk Festival, Bonnaroo, Governor’s Ball, Farm Aid, Lollapalooza and more.

Golden Hour earned Kacey her third #1 debut on Billboard’s Top Country Album chart and distinguished her as only the third artist ever to take home Album of the Year at the GRAMMY Awards, Country Music Association Awards and Academy of Country Music Awards. In 2023, Musgraves achieved her first #1 entry on the Hot 100 chart for “I Remember Everything,” a duet with Zach Bryan which was just crowned with the Best Country Song by a Duo or Group at the 66th GRAMMY Awards. With this win, Musgraves became the only artist in history to receive a GRAMMY Award for Best Country Album, Best Country Song, Best Country Solo Performance and Best Country Duo or Group Performance.
