Hosted by Tony Hinchcliffe and his co-host Brian Redban, each night of Kill Tony Live from Dolby Live at Park MGM will feature its own lineup of special guests, bucket pulls, and completely different panels, giving fans two unique, unpredictable shows. Watch as hundreds of comedians put their name into the legendary Bucket of Destiny for a chance to perform one minute of stand-up – and then get interviewed live in front of a sold-out crowd of thousands.

Hinchcliffe, an internationally touring comedian of nearly two decades, one of the top roasters in the world, and the mastermind and host behind “Kill Tony,” has exploded in the podcasting space, orchestrating the world’s top live comedy podcast since its inception in June 2013. Over the past decade, his platform has attracted hundreds of millions of listeners. His flagship show, now permanently nestled at The Comedy Mothership in downtown Austin, consistently sells out in minutes and draws a throng of budding comedians eager for their moment in the spotlight.

In 2024, Hinchcliffe took “Kill Tony” on a triumphant tour, proving its unrivaled standing in the comedy ecosystem. The show traveled to prestigious venues like the Intuit Dome and YouTube Theater in Los Angeles and continued the momentum with two sold-out performances at Madison Square Garden in New York City in 2024. Another two sold-out shows at Madison Square Garden followed in 2025. This journey through the nation’s largest arenas underscores “Kill Tony’s” unmatched influence in the stand-up comedy world.

Hinchcliffe himself is a formidable force in comedy, known for his razor-sharp wit and his preeminent role in roast battles. His participation in Netflix’s Roast of Tom Brady was not just an appearance but a showcase of his mastery of the art of roasting, where his words cut through the air with precision and humor, cementing his status as a top-tier wordsmith in the industry. In 2025, he made a return to the dais for the Roast of Kevin Hart, which was another prime example of why his career, rich with experience and edged with audacity, positions him as a uniquely authoritative figure in the realm of comedy and free speech.

Tony Hinchcliffe’s stand-up comedy special, Tony Hinchcliffe: Man of the People, premiered on Netflix on June 9, 2026. Additionally, as part of a multi-special streaming deal, Netflix hosts several of his live “Kill Tony” arena and showcase events.
